More 1 A gift or a curse?

1A

Förslag:

On Friday Kylie was going to meet her friends Brianna and Fiona for a beer.

On the way to the pub, she bought a lottery ticket for two euros.

The TV was on at the pub and at seven o'clock they showed the Euro lottery draw. The announcer said the winning numbers were 2, 17, 28, 49, and 50, and the Lucky Stars 3 and 7.

Brianna, Fiona and Kylie stared at the ticket. It was the winning ticket. She had won 116 million euros!

Kylie rushed across the street to the police station and asked one of the officers to take care of the ticket. She was afraid of losing it.

The officer drove Kylie to a bank where she locked the ticket up in a safety box.

1B

Förslag:

At midnight there were journalists and curious people outside the McKennas' house, so Kylie went on TV to beg for privacy. It didn't help much, so soon the whole family had to hide in a hotel in Dublin. In the summer, the McKennas bought a huge house that cost €2.5 million.

Brianna and Fiona said Kylie had changed and she was not the happy and cheerful woman she used to be. Instead she was unhappy and afraid.

The police told her that a criminal gang were planning to kidnap her son Gary and he gave up football. It was too dangerous for him to go out. Although the family was very rich they were not happy anymore.

2A

Förslag:

Tricia was always standing a few yards away from her group at school. Nobody noticed when she was absent. Nobody picked her for the team. During the maths lesson, everybody was concentrating on their own tasks and nobody saw Tricia leave the classroom. They all thought she had gone to the toilet. Her books were on her desk and her bag was on the floor.

The next morning there was an open book on Tricia's desk, but she wasn't there. Her parents didn't know where she was. They were divorced and both had thought Tricia was staying with the other parent.

One year later, on 3 September, there was the open book on Tricia's desk and her hat was hanging from the back of the chair. And on the blackboard were the words I'm still with you written in Tricia's handwriting.

The news was in the papers and both on the radio and on TV, but Tricia was still missing.

On 3 September, the students are speaking in low voices. There is suspense in the air – and fear. The door to the maths room is open and a crowd of students is in the doorway looking at something inside. (Well, what are they staring at, do you think?)

One day Moakes and his pals started to make John's life a misery. They took his glasses, they ate his lunch, stole his books and ripped his jacket.

On John's birthday, the seventh of July, they were waiting for John outside the park.

They bumped him thirteen times. They thumped his body on the hard ground and pushed stinging nettles down John's back. John collapsed on the ground.

They ran off and a man came walking over to John. The man looked down at John. He was sobbing. John told him what had happened. The stranger took out a little green bottle from his pocket. It was a secret drug. He explained: "If you drink it, you'll become incredibly strong for about five minutes, stronger than any other man on Earth."

The next day Moakes and his gang were waiting for John in the playground. John tipped the contents of the green bottle into his mouth. He hit Moakes in the face. He knocked Sam off his feet. He punched Joe on the temple. Then Mr Wilson came and stopped the fight.

A few days later John told Mr Wilson about the secret drug. He had asked the strange man what was in it.

The drug was made of three things: water, sugar and Faith.
